DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Clarence Rodamer House is located on the E side of Foxtown Road, approximately .8 miles N of Orendorf Road. N and S of the house are fields which were previously surface-mined.

The house is a two-story, gable-roofed dwelling with a three bay, center-door facade. The house measures two bays on the gable ends. The facade points north. One-story, shed porches run the length of the N and S elevations.

The house rests on a cut stone foundation. The land falls from S to N, making the foundation more visible on the N elevation. The house is covered with asbestos shingles over German siding. The German siding is still visible on the first floor of the facade. The windows are two over two sash, and on all but the E gable end, have simple cornices and plain board surrounds. On the E gable end, the windows have plain mitred surrounds.

The roof is covered with corrugated metal. The house has two interior brick stove chimneys, one at each gable end. The facade porch roof is covered with corrugated metal and is supported by five square posts. A jigsaw balustrade runs between the posts. On the S elevation, the E end of the porch has been enclosed to form an extra room. The porch roof is covered with asphalt shingles and the W end of it is supported by three square wooden posts.

Northwest of the house is a one-story, gable-roofed outbuilding. The outbuilding is covered with plain weatherboarding and the roof is covered with tarpaper. There are six over six sash windows in the S and E elevation. The outbuilding is extremely dilapidated.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This house is a variation of a common western Maryland type. The three-bay facade arrangement occurs frequently in the county, but this house does not have the characteristic rear wing, which would have housed the kitchen.
